Medeon – a node in life science

Medeon was founded in 1985 and is Sweden's oldest life science park. At the end of the 90s, the park in Malmö had about 17 companies, and today this has grown to about 60. Diagnostics, medical technology, pharmaceutical development and biotechnology are the main focus areas for the companies in the park. Medeon has an incubator attached to the science park, a perfect growth environment for startups.

In 2020, Medeon celebrated its 35th birthday. It is an important node in the region and a significant player both nationally and internationally, promoting growth in the life science industry. Medeon is a marketing and development company that never stands still, but is driven by constant expansion.

Medeon is owned by the City of Malmö and the real estate company Wihlborgs Fastigheter. In 2020 a new building was completed at Medeon, this enable both existing and new companies to grow and expand even further.

Attractive location

The park in Malmö lies in the middle of Greater Copenhagen and in the heart of Medicon Valley - an attractive location in Malmö close to the city, to Skåne University Hospital and to Malmö University.
